SOUTH-EAST EUROPE

Context

- post-socialist countries
- state-capture
- corruption
- division along ethno-nationalist lines
- no regional cooperation
- EU candidate/policies
- brain drain

- Absence of climate justice in the public/political discourse (natural disaster)

Food for thought

Should the right to energy be a human right?
How? Why / why not?

How can the green energy transition be managed in future?

How do you understand energy security in relation to energy activism?

“Yet, amidst the silhouette of the Tuzla powerhouse's cooling towers, the spirit of childhood play and delight persists as a potent antidote to mortality's grasp in Bukinje. When passing by the imposing monument of industry, one's gaze ought not to be captivated by the towering chimneys, but rather guided towards the promise of tomorrow embodied in the innocent laughter of the children, deserving of a lifespan far surpassing that of their forebears.”
